Раньше у него было сто домов

He used to have 100 houses

Оле́г:	1 2	Зо́я, опя́ть у тебя́ но́вая маши́на? Ско́лько у тебя́ маши́н?	Zoya, you have a new car again? How many cars do you have?
Зо́я:	3 4 5 6 7 8 9	У меня только три машины. Одна старая красная немецкая машина и две новых синих итальянских машины. А у моего брата действительно очень много машин. По-моему, у него сорок машин. Двадцать три спортивных машины и семнадцать «обыкновенных» машин. Он, конечно, большой любитель спортивных машин.	I only have three cars. One old red German car and two new (dark) blue Italian cars. But my brother really has a lot of cars. I think he has 40 cars. Twenty-three sports-cars and 17 'regular' cars. He, of course, is a great lover of sports-cars.
Оле́г:	11	А сколько у твоего отца домов?	How many houses does you father have?
Зо́я:	12 13 14 15	Ра́ньше у него́ бы́ло сто домо́в, а неда́вно он про́да́л пятьдеся́т оди́н дом. А пото́м он мне подари́л три́дцать четы́ре до́ма. Тепе́рь у него́ то́лько пятна́дцать домо́в.	He used to have 100 houses, but recently he sold 51 houses. And then he gave me (as a present) 34 houses. Now he only has 15 houses.
Оле́г:	16	Бедня́га!	Poor thing!

Слова́рь

(See new numbers in next section.)

6	действительно	really; in fact; in truth
7	спорти́вный	sport(s) (adjective)
8	обыкнове́нный	normal; regular (Related to обы́чно. Note the mutation of $\kappa > $ ч.)
13	мне	Indirect Object (Dative) form of я. We saw this in the story: Он помога́л мне во всём. The verb help takes an Indirect Object in Russian. More on this later.)
14	подарй+ + ACC (thing given) and Indirect Object (Dative – person to whom it is given). Don't worry about these forms for now.	give as a gift (Use only in the Past for now; Related to пода́рок.)

- 100 сто

41.A.1 Spelling Tips for Numbers:

As a general rule, a word may have only one soft-sign.

- 1) For all numbers 5-30 (except, of course 21, 22, 23, 24) there is a soft-sign AT THE END OF THE WORD. Thus, the soft-sign in the first part of the numbers 15-19 (пять, шесть, etc.) is lost before the suffix -надцать: пятна́дцать, девятна́дцать, etc.
- 2) 50, 60, 70, 80 have their single soft-sign IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WORD, and not at the end, where we find the suffix -десят.

Good mnemonic: After 40, you get soft in the middle! (Don't laugh – it'll happen to you.)

3) Со́рок 40, девяно́сто 90, and сто 100 have no soft-sign anywhere.

	Ξ.

Question:	What's up with the word со́рок ? Why isn't there a trace of четы́р- in it?
Answer:	The exact derivation of the Russian word for 40 is somewhat contentious. The most common explanation is that it refers to a bag that could hold up to 40 fur skins. Hey, that beats the French version of 80, which is '4 20s'.

41.A.2 Two forms for two

With Masculine and Neuter nouns use ДВа (два, двадцать два, сорок два, сто два, etc.)

With Feminine nouns use ДВС (две, два́дцать две, со́рок две, сто две, etc.)

41.5 Numbers and Case: The fun begins

Russian, along with several other Slavic languages, does some rather strange things with Numbers and Case. It's not that the rules themselves are so complicated, it's just that from the point of view of English, there doesn't seem to be any good reason why things are the way they are.

We will only look at Numbers modifying Nominative and Inanimate Accusative Noun Phrases. In other words, we won't learn yet how to say I saw his six ex-wives (Animate Accusative) or He bought that for my ten sisters (Genitive because of для).

To be honest, even native speakers of Russian sometimes avoid sentences with numbers in cases other than Nominative and Accusative.

We'll break things down into three groups, based on the final digit of the number: a) 1; b) 2, 3, 4; c)  $\geq$  5

41.5.1 1 and numbers ending in 1

The number 1 is actually a Nounjective. In the Nominative and Accusative the ending is the same as the Noun it is modifying (Ø, -o, -a), unless a singular Animate Masculine Accusative is involved (and then the Genitive ending is used: Я ви́дел одного́ врача́). This applies not only to 1, but also to all compound numbers that end in 1 (e.g., 21; 41; 671, 831), but NOT 11 (see section (c) below). Note один is end-stressed, and contains the cluster buster и.

1,31,61, ETC.	ADJ AGREES WITH 1	Noun agrees with 1
оди́н	большо́й	стол
одно́	краси́вое	зда́ние
одна́	но́вая	ру́чка
одну́	кра́сную	кни́гу
два́дцать оди́н	ску́чный	журна́л
три́дцать одно́	ста́рое	общежитие
сто одна	си́няя	маши́на
со́рок одну́	жёлтую	крова́ть

Some examples of Number Phrases ending with 1 in the Accusative:

Она́ купи́ла два́дцать оди́н но́вый каранда́ш. She bought 21 new pencils. Мы ви́дели се́мьдесят одно́ большо́е зда́ние. We saw 71 big buildings. Пе́тя пел сто одну́ францу́зскую пе́сню. Petya sang 101 French songs.

Мы ви́дели сто три́дцать одну́ зелёную We saw 131 green doors.

It may seem bizarre to have a singular adjective and noun after the number 61 or 9,437,901, but that's how it's done in Russian.

41.5.2 2, 3, 4 and numbers ending in 2, 3, 4

Put the adjective into the Genitive Plural (don't ask why it's plural) and the noun into the Genitive Singular (don't ask why it's Genitive). Don't forget to distinguish between Masculine/Neuter два and Feminine две:

2, 3, 4	ADJ IN GEN PL	Noun in GEN SG
два / три / четы́ре	кра́сных	карандаша / здания / словаря
две / три / четы́ре	хоро́ших*	шко́лы / ку́хни / крова́ти

* Note: It is possible to find a Nominative Plural adjective with Feminine Nouns following 2, 3, 4: две новые машины. Just be aware of this; you're never "wrong" to use a Genitive Plural adjective. It's easier to remember just one ending for all adjectives.

The above rules apply not only to 2, 3, 4, but also to all compound numbers that end in 2, 3, 4 (e.g., 22; 33; 968, 984), but NOT 12, 13, and 14 (see section (c) below).

22, 63, 104, ETC.	ADJ IN GEN PL	Noun in GEN SG
два́дцать два	больши́х	до́ма / общежи́тия
тридцать две	жёлтых	кни́ги / две́ри
со́рок три	плохи́х	студента / студентки
сто четы́ре	си́них	полоте́нца / маши́ны

In the Accusative (assuming the noun is inanimate) everything is the same as in the above table:

Она́ купи́ла два́дцать два чёрных карандаша́. She bought 22 black pencils. Мы ви́дели се́мьдесят три но́вых зда́ния. We saw 73 new buildings. Пе́тя пел сто четы́ре кита́йских пе́сни. Petya sang 104 Chinese songs.

Грамматика

Question: What about nouns like часы, which appear only in the plural? They don't have a Genitive Singular.

Answer: Good question. Just avoid using these nouns with 2, 3, 4. (After all, do you really need more than one watch?)

Say what Bépa saw:

Вера видела...

1. 101 new pencils 2. 53 boring books 3. 184 Russian stores

. 152 Japanese (япо́нский)
5. 41 new doors
6. 73 first-class universities computers

7. 64 black cars 8. 192 old schools 9. 31 tasty cookies

41.5.5 $\geq$ 5 and numbers ending in 5 or greater

Numbers (including compounds) that end in 5 or above use Genitive Plural for both adjectives and nouns.

Number≥5	ADJ AND NOUN IN GEN PL
пять	ску́чных	фи́льмов
оди́ннадцать*	дороги́х	кни́г
тридцать семь	ста́рых	ключей
сто	больши́х	зда́ний

* Note: Even though 11-14 end in the number symbol 1-4, the word оди́н, два, три, четы́ре is not pronounced. Therefore these numbers behave like 5, 6, 17, 40, etc., and take Genitive Plural on both adjectives and nouns.

As with numbers ending in 2, 3, 4, the Accusative noun phrase with the number keeps the same cases as the Nominative (assuming that the Accusative noun is inanimate.):

Она́ купи́ла пять чёрных карандаше́й. She bought 5 black pencils. Мы ви́дели се́мьдесят семь но́вых зда́ний. We saw 77 new buildings. Пе́тя пел сто со́рок во́семь кита́йских пе́сен. Petya sang 148 Chinese songs.

The strange thing with the above examples is that you have a verb that takes a direct object (which should require Accusative), yet the adjective and the noun are in Genitive. If it's any consolation, the number itself is in Accusative – even if you couldn't tell. (The same thing applies to a number phrase that is the subject – the number itself is Nominative, but the adjective and noun are Genitive. Such is life, or at least Russian grammar.)

Say what Миша bought:

1. 96 mediocre printers 2. 58 new sportscars 3. 187 big refrigerators

4. 85 ugly photographs 5. 40 white envelopes 6. 79 small pieces of sausage

7. 66 green towels 8. 100 bottles of beer 9. 38 expensive dictionaries

Here is a summary of the (bizarre) facts about Numbers and Case:

Number	ADJ	Noun
1, #'s ending in 1 (≠ 11)	NOM/ACC (inanimate) Singular
2, 3, 4; #'s ending in 2, 3, 4 (\neq 12, 13, 14)	GEN Plural	GEN Singular
≥5; #'s ending in ≥5	GEN	Plural
